

The first picture is taken in the Gethsemane Garden. The old olives are claimed to be thousands of years old.

May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

This is the Wailing Wall. Believers (Christians and Jews) from all over the world meet here in prayer. Men go in the left side, whilst women go in the right one.

May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

This is an instantaneous picture, surprising an Arabian man with his children and donkey. Most likely, taken in Nazareth. May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

Haifa is a harbor and also the center of Baha'i religion. You can see the Baha'i Gardens and Temple, followed by the city and the Mediterranean Sea. May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

The Desert of Judea is a rocky desert. There are lots of places where you can see no vegetation or living forms. The Bedouins live in this deserts, and breed sheep and goats.
May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

The Dead Sea is the saltiest sea in the world. The shore is rocky, and if you want to take a bath (otherwise, really good for health), you must find some private beaches like the one in the picture.
May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

A camel in the Citadel of Jerusalem is quite a sight, as I could surprise it in this instantaneous picture.
May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

A sight of Jerusalem, from the Mountain of Olives; this mountain is holy for Christians, Jews, and Muslims, and you may see the Jewish Thumbs below the place where I was when I took this picture.
May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor

The last picture features the Citadel of Jerusalem, seen from outside. It may be entered through eight gates.

May 2000, Copyright A. Petrisor